

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An interface and a method for image data transmission that is used for data transmission through a plurality of data lines is described, the correctness of the transmitted data being 5 checked by reference to control data. The checking capability is achieved in that at least one item of control data is transmitted through each data line.